The Cleveland Orchestra to perform with Grammy-winner Laufey at Blossom Music Center

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Orchestra is thrilled to announce it will perform with Grammy-winning Icelandic jazz singer, composer, and producer Laufey on August 7, 2025, at Blossom Music Center.

Laufey: A Night at the Symphony offers a blend of Laufey’s unique, soulful style with the depth and precision of one of the world’s finest orchestras.

Known for her ethereal voice and innovative fusion of classical and jazz influences, Laufey has captivated audiences worldwide with her emotive storytelling and distinctive sound.

Her performance at Blossom features a selection of her original songs, as well as a few unexpected surprises, accompanied by the power of The Cleveland Orchestra. This collaboration promises to be an extraordinary evening, highlighting both Laufey’s distinctive vocal presence and the Orchestra’s musicality, led by conductor Ross Jamie Collins in his Cleveland Orchestra debut.

Laufey: A Night at the Symphony is part of the Orchestra’s 2025 Blossom Music Festival. This year’s festival showcases an exciting lineup of performances, including timeless classical works, blockbuster film scores, Broadway hits, and appearances by some of today's biggest stars, all set against the stunning backdrop of Blossom Music Center.

About Laufey

"As a musician, my goal is to bring jazz and classical music to my generation through a more accessible road," declares the composer, singer, producer, and multi-instrumentalist Laufey (pronounced lay-vay). The LA-based, Icelandic-Chinese artist's trailblazing approach paid off, as she is now the top streaming jazz artist in the world with an audience of over 15 million across all socials.

Inspired by jazz greats and classical masters while possessing a point of view that could only be conveyed by a 21st-century twenty-something, Laufey's GRAMMY-winning second album Bewitched is a reflection on "the magic and luster unique to youthful love." Her self-assured musicianship and deeply felt lyrics take the idea of "classic" music and humanize it, giving her music a relatability to the next generation. "There are very few examples of artists who are on stage with an orchestra one day and making TikToks the next," she notes dryly. Laufey's straddling of those two worlds has put her in a singular place across music.
